Urban Design Group Invited to Participate in Exclusive Asian Infrastructure & Property Development Summit 2010

The Asian Infrastructure & Property Development Summit was held in July 2010 in Macao, China. Executive-level delegates from public authorities, developers and contractors met with leading-edge solution providers, including Urban Design Group, to collaborate in developing strategies for future growth in the region.

Dallas (TX), September 8, 2010 – John Novack, FAIA, Founder and Principal of Urban Design Group, was invited to attend the Asian Infrastructure & Property Development (AIPD) Summit 2010 in Macao, China. Participation in the AIPD Summit was by invitation only, and the annual event was designed to bring senior-level executives from Asia’s infrastructure and property development entities together with prequalified suppliers and consultants specializing in project development, architectural innovation and cutting edge construction.

The AIPD Summit provided an opportunity for key decision makers to meet qualified partners to form alliances and promote growth in Asia’s emerging markets. The exclusive business forum included advanced presentations on construction, financing and sustainable development and provided the participants with opportunities for high-level networking and one-on-one meetings.

Novack was invited to participate based on his depth of experience and the firm’s reputation for offering unique architectural solutions. With 45 years of experience, Novack brings a wealth of leadership and knowledge to the firm. His areas of expertise include hotel, resort, retail, mixed-use, recreational and institutional projects. Honored for his many accomplishments, he was admitted to The College of Fellows of The American Institute of Architects in 1994.
